A WHALE SHIP, supposed to be the Mt. Wolfaston, was seen off the Kona coast last week boiling Natives reported that she had taken four party of native fishermen and towed into Kailua, as construction and towed into Kailas, as ported last week, turned out 18 or 20 barrels. Whales have been seen quite often near Hawaii, at one came into Kealakeakua Bay a day or two clore the eruption occurred, but was permitted to ave again without being attacked.

KAPIOLANI PARE -The work of improving this suburban resort is being vigorously pushed for-ward, and great and pleasant changes will soon be sible. Mr. McCullum is engaged with a gang of as asbatantial hog-proof board fence is about to be constructed, which will preserve the park from the intrusion of all manner of predatory animals, and will permit the unhindered growth of the trees and grass. Aimost before we know it, the city of Homolau will be blessed with one of the most beautiful sea-side parks in the world.

VOLCANO EXCITEMENT .- Ever since the return of he steamer Kilanes on Monday last, the window Whitney's bookstore, where a plan and sketch of the unique volcanic eruption in the en-tution is not in as flourishing circumstances as we could wish and as it ought to be. A NEW AND REMARKABLE VOLCANIC OUTBREAK!

IN KEALAKEAKUA BAY I

THE Steamer Kilauea, which left this port on Tuesday of last week for the scene of the eruption on Hawaii, returned on Monday morning, having proceeded as far as Kau, which point she left on Friday evening, nothing being visible of the summit eruption, which occurred on the 14th, and which lasted only six hours. Returning from Kan, we reached Kealakeakua Bay, on Saturday morning, Feb. 24, where a most singular ontbreak was found to have taken place, being nothing less than a SUBMARINE VOLCANO, near the entrance of the harbor. On approach ing the scene of action, three canoes were observed cruising around the crater, in which were Judge Hoapili, Hon, Simon Kani, and others, who were attracted thither by the reports which had spread rapidly over the coun-As the steamer approached nearer, columns of smoke or steam were seen rising from the surface of the sea, resembling the spouting of a school of whales, and numerous pieces of lava were floating about. A boat was immediately despatched to the scene, which returned with specimens of the floating lava, which have been brought to Honolulu, and can be seen at our office.

The natives report that the eruption was first observed in the sea, at three o'clock on the morning of the 24th, about a mile from shore, and it appeared like innumerable red, blue and green lights. Some thought these were the steamer's lights-only they were so numerous as to excite some consternation, Morning disclosed the fact that a new volcano had broken out, and that it was the cause of the strange illumination seen during the night.

REFORT OF HAW SCHR GINVANNI ARIANI, HEMPSTEAD, Assers.—Sailed from Hossimba Dec 19th, 1878, and arrived a lasker's Island Jan 187, 1871; left mane day for Photos Island; on it is strong jab from the part of the property of the part of Those who are acquainted with Kealakeaacross the track of vessels bound south from the bay. The course of this land and submarine ground rent is about W. N. W. by E. S. E.

In the afternoon of the 24th, three boat from the steamer visited the scene of the eruption, cruised directly over the most active part, where the water was in a state of peculiar activity, boiling and appearing as if pass ing over rapids, or very much like the water at Hellgate, New York. While the boats were in this position, blocks of lava, two feet square, came up from below, frequently striking and jarring the boats. In one minute, we counted no less than six of these stones hitting the boat. Yet as the lava was quite soft, no harm was done. Nearly all the pieces, on reaching the surface were, red hot, emitting steam and gas, strongly sulphurous. A fine block of this has been secured for the Museum.

At one time the surface of the sea was covered with several hundred pieces of this lava; but we observed that as soon as they became cold they sank, as rapidly as they had risen. Several were taken into the boats, perfectly incandescent and so molten in the interior, that the lava could be stirred with a stick, like pudding, the water having penetrated not more than an inch from the surface.

A rumbling noise was heard, like that of rocks in a freshet, caused no doubt by the cruption of lava from the submarine crater, which is supposed to be a crack or line of rupture extending at least a mile from the shore. Another rupture, doubtless a continuation of the submarine fissure, was traced inland from the shore nearly three miles, vary-In some places the water was seen pouring down the opening into the abyss below,-food for the fiery element.

A severe earthquake shock was felt, by those living at Kaawaloa and Keei during the night of the eruption, which must have preceded the outbreak. It was quite severe, but no damage is reported.

The lava thrown up from the new volcano is quite porous, brittle and light, similar to what is frequently emitted at the commencement of these eruptions, called by Hawaiians When hot and burning, it floats readily, sustained on the surface partly by the Gazevre, should secure them at once. They the gases, which give a strong sulphurous smell to the vicinity. When cold and saturated with water, it sinks to the bottom. day or to-morrow, if she took the same route as It is probable that only the very lightest lava reaches the surface, while most of it remains at the bottom, the water here varying from ten to fifty fathoms in depth. Some of this lava consists of what is known as " Pele's hair," and when first taken out is red hot, and yet preserves its peculiar characteristics. This singular volcanic glass has always been supposed to be formed by the wind blowing the floating lava as it rises from the crater, and causing it to spin out. How it gets down un der Kona is a question for scientists to solve Numerous fishes were killed by the action of the volcano, and were picked up on the surface by natives cruising around the spot in

The foreigners residing on the hill at Kealakeakua watched this singular eruption with glasses, but so far as we could learn it was en laborers in road-making and tree-planting, and not visited by boats until after the passengers by the steamer had done so,

What is most singular in this connection, is the fact that no volcanic eruption has been known to have occurred in the Kona district of Hawaii, during the residence of foreigners there, or within the last hundred years. The active fires and flows were supposed to be confined to the summit crater of Mokuaweoweo rance of Koziakeskus Bay is on exhibition, has been and to the districts of Puna and Kau. The unded by an interested crowd, generally com- present outbreak indicates that the internal fires are again at work undermining the earth crust below Kona, though it is to be hoped that there will be no further outbreak. How long this eruption will continue in action, no one can tell; but it is highly probable that the volcano will soon burst out again, either near this spot or somewhere else on the islands > of Hawaii. It is quite probable that H. B. M's Ship Fantome, Captain Long, will visit Kealakekua Bay during the present week, and if so will

From the Volcano! she is very partial to editors who volunteer to visit her solely to see and describe her pyrotechnic displays. Four times we have been thus singularly favored-once in 1859; then in 1868, when the eruption lasted only four days, and we were among the few who saw it; again in 1872, when we visited the summit crater of Mokuaweoweo, and witnessed it in all its glory; and lastly the present most remarkable submarine eruption, the first of the kind recorded in Hawaiian history.

Among those who visited the submarine crater, in the steamer's boats, were, Itis Lordship Bishop Willis, A. S. Cleghorn, H. M. Whitney, W. W. Hall, W. Wilder, S. Myers of California, John M. Sheldon, A. Moot of Canada, Engineer Campbell, and several officers of the steamer Kilanea.
